If you have visited the Clover Leaf Wealth website the first thing you may see is the statement Helping families like yours plan for the future so you can spend more time on what matters most. This isn't just a catchy headline to grab your attention. Clover Leaf Wealth Strategies has a particular focus on the unique needs of special needs families because this mission is deeply important to me. It touches every part of my life—as a mother, a professional, and an advocate. As a special needs mom, I know firsthand the emotional, financial, and logistical challenges families face when trying to secure the right services and plan for the future of a child or family member with disabilities. I've lived it, and I continue to live it every day.

Professionally, I've made it my mission to help other families navigate those same challenges. As a Chartered Special Needs Consultant and financial advisor, I understand how critical it is to empower families with the right knowledge and resources. This is why we created our monthly newsletter and the resource sections on our website to help support families caring for those with disabilities. Here you can find past newsletters, articles and community resources.
